The Insanity of Gerrit Smith. A gentleman who saw and conversed with Gerrit Smith, shortly after the affair at Harper's Ferry, told us that he was insane-not merely excited by fear and agitated by the emotions which his complicity in the affair night produce, but mentally deranged. His eye was wild, and his appearance haggard, and his motions spasmodic and uncertain, but unceasingly restless. He was in constant fear of being arrested and carried to Virginia-and suspected his friends of an intention to betray him into the hands of justice. When the cruel had issued a requisition upon Governor Morgan for him frantic that his friends saw no other hope than to send him to an asylum.

We make an extract from a private letter upon this subject, which gives some particulars of this said end of a well meant but misdirected career, fatal in its consequences alike to him and to all whom he involved in his fanaticisms. A letter from Utica, dated the 8th instant,

" MY DEAR SIR: Gerrit Smith was brought to our asylum yesterday, and is quite deranged, intellectually as well as morally, and he is also feeble physically. He refused to take an anodyne, alleging that they wanted to put him to sleep for the purpose of boxing him up and He has also on hand a fine assortment of HUB BANDS, taking him to Virginia. When informed that he must take it, voluntarily or by compulsion, he opened the door and screamed (into the hall) 'I protest.' He then took it. I deem his madness a sign of the times. He is a victim to the excitement which he helped to make general, and which, in various degrees, is now pervading all muffin. the free States. It is much akin to the excitement against witches that prevailed at Salem and other parts of New England, and the time will come when our descendants will look back at it as we look back on the doings in Salem. I have the fact on the best authority, from a Captain of the Staff, who related it to me recently in the presence of six other officers, returning, like himself, from Ever opened in this City. We are also receiving weekly Solferino, and who confirmed his statements which were as follows: "You remember," he said, "that famous order of the day, and the telegram to the Empress after Magenta? He said: 'A division of the Imperial Guard has covered itself with glory! For a whole day it has sustained the shock of forty thousand Austrians,' etc. Now, how do you explain that on the morrow, McMabon, who had come only at the end of the day, received all the honors of it, and was made Duke of Magenta 5 pieces 36 inch BLACK GROS de ZURICH TAFFETA and Field Marshal." "Why," said I, "it was on account of the timely help he brought to the victorious but exhausted Guard." "Not in the least," replied the captain, " et voila comme en ecrie l'histoire ;" I was there and I can tell you what nobody will dare to publish in France, though it is as true as the Gospel. When the lamous order of the day concerning the Guards became known among the first corps, McMahon's, a great irritation prevailed, amountin almost to rebellion. 'Since all the glory is always given to the corps chitri, (they call thus the privileged Guards.) let them fight alone! we will not do anything more!' Early in the morning McMahon, sharing the anger of his soldiers, went to the Emperor and told him in what state of mind his troops were charging him with injustice to those who had, in fact, won the battle, and saved him (the Emperor) from the greatest danger. Napoleon was surprised. "What have you done?" said he to McMahon : "why did you come so late, after I sent you so many orders to come to Magenta?" McMahon then begged the Emperor to follow him; he showed him on the ground strewn for several miles with the bodies of his dead soldiers, that he, McMahon, had to fight and overcome the bulk of the Austrian army in order to reach Magenta, and join the Emperor, that but for his timely coming the Emperor was enveloped by the enemy, and, finally, that His Majesty had made the enormous blunder of taking for the whole battle that which he had witnessed, and which was only an cpisode, and the least part of it! It was then, in order to quiet the murmuring soldiers of McMahon, that he made the latter Duke and Marshal; but, ever since the egregious mistake of Magenta, there is not an officer or a soldier in the army who has the > Pat and the Wedded Pair. " Last month General Sampson Dove, of Winepusa, married the darter of the American Keounsel (consul) to a stranger?" "Never," I said. "Well, that's a cruel pity, for you would have 'seen a peeler,' I tell you-a real corn fed gal, and no mistake. Just what Eve was, guess, when she walked about the garden, and angels come to see her-not so everlastin' thin and vapov, like sunbeams. Well, they first went to Killarney on a wedding 'tower,' and after they stared at the lovely place till they hurt their eyes, they came down here to see the Groves of Blarney, and what not. Well, the gineral didn't want folks to know they were only just married, for the people always run to the winders and out doors to look at a bride, as if she was a bird that was only seen once in a hundred years. It's on-convenient, that's a fact, and it makes a sensitive, delecate-minded gal teel as awkward as a wrong boot. So says the gineral to Pat: 'Pat,' says he, 'don't go now and tell folks we are only just married; lie low and keep dark, will you? that's a good fellow.' 'Bedad, never fear, your honor, divil a

So, says he, one day, 'Pat,' says he, 'I hope you did not tell them we were only just married, Will find our stock of DOMESTIC GOODS the largest and did you?" 'Tell them you was just married, is it, yer honor?' said I, let me alone for that! They were mightily inquisitive about it, and especially the master-he wanted to know all about it entirely. 'Married, is it?' says I; 'why they ain't married at all, at all; the divil a parson ever said grace over them! But I'll tell you what, says I, 'if you won't repeat it to nobody, they are going to be married in about a fortnight, for I heard them say so this blessed day, with my own ears.' If the gineral wasn't raven, hopping mad, it ain't no matter. The Wreck of the Royal Charter.

By the City of Baltimore we received brief accounts of the wreck of the screw-steamship Royal Charter, and of the tearful loss of life involved therein. We are now in possession of some details of the sad calamity: It appears that the Royal Charter, when within two or three hours' sail of Liverpool, (after a rapid passage from Melbourne,) experienced the full fury of a terrible northwest gale, which prevailed all over England during the nights of the 25th and 26th ultimo. The steam power of the vessel being merely auxiliary, it was insufficient to prevent her from being driven towards the shore. and, as the water was rapidly shoaling, it became necessary, at about 10 o'clock at night, to let go the anchors -guns having been previously fired and rockets discharged in the hopes of attracting a pilot, but without success. The gale meantime increased to a perfect hurricane, and at 2 o'clock in the morning the port anchor chain parted, and shortly afterwards the ship was beating on the rocks in a place called Moelfra Bay, near Puffin Island, on the coast of Anglesca. The masts were cut away, but without any beneficial result. About daylight (6 o'clock) a sailor, with a cord tied around his waist, jumped overboard, and, although the sea ran tremendously high, he succeeded in reaching and maintaining a footing on the rocky shore, which was not more NY Lady or Gentleman in the United States, possessing A from $3 to $7, can enter into an easy and respectable than ten yards distant from the ship, but was almost perpendicular to the height of forty feet. A hawser was then got ashore, and a boatswain's chair was attached to it, with a view of hauling the passengers and crew ashore. About a dozen seamen were by this means soon landed, and it was hoped that all on board might be saved. At about 7 o'clock, however, the waves beating against the ship's broadside with continued violence, she suddenly snapped asunder amidships and tumbled in pieces. As the passengers had mostly kept below, large numbers were killed by the crashing debris, and only twenty-six persons managed to get ashore, making the whole number saved only thirty-nine out of a total (passengers and crew) of four hundred and ninety-three. The scene was terrible in the extreme. Many were washed on and off the rocks many times, and in numerous instances those who thought themselves secure on jutting rocks were hurled back into the sea by the furious Oil Co., and all persons are cautioned against using the electioneering hoax was circulated that Governor Wise waves. Not a superior officer was saved, neither a woman nor child. Captain Taylor exerted himself to as a fugitive from justice, he seems to have become so the utmost, but was finally struck on the head while struggiing in the water by a boat falling from the davits, and was seen no more. The destruction of the ship was rapid and complete, so that by eight o'clock nothing was visible but masses of wreck, mingled with the bodies of the dead, washed on the strand. The vessel had on board (supposed) 70,000 ounces of gold, besides a large number of sovereigns. Estimates of the total value ranged from £500,000 to £800,000, and hopes were entertained that this might be recovered by divers. Of the persons on board the Royal Charter when she left Australia, sixty-three were cabin passengers, 525 other passengers, and 123 crew-total 511. Of these seventeen were landed at Queenstown and thirty-nine were saved from the wreck, so that the total loss of life was four hundred and fifty-five. What poet do miners value most? Coleridge. A FRENCH BREAKFAST .- Two salt-cellars and a
